now trial on two grounds. The first is that the court erred in charging the jury as to good character. I think the charge on that point was strictly correct. The court had no right to tell the jury what weight to to attach to any particular fact or give any fact undpe prominence. The motion is also made because new evidence has been discovered. The ovidence at the trial disclosed the fact that Scott, the deceased, was standing by the work bench, when two or three witnesses, who had heard the noise of a scullie in the new trial on two grounds. The first is that

Scott, the deceased, was standing by the work bench, when two or three witnesses, who had heard the noise of a scuffle in the shop entered. Scott was suffering from a wound over the eye, a chisel having been delivered into his head. When these witnesses came in and inquired about it the de-ceased said; 'He has killed me.' The de-fendant made no reply at first, but afterwards he said he did it and he didn't know why he did it, and he told someone to take the chisel and kill him. He was after-wards taken to prison and again said he didn't know why he did it. Afterwards he stated that Scott was advancing on him with a hammer when the blow was delivered. The witness Poole said he was at the place where the killing occurred a short time after the tragedy and found the tool chest open and blood on the floor within three feet of the tool chest, which was from six to nine feet from the work hearth. The feet stand by Pool if work-bench. The fact stated by Pool, if admitted, would of itself be of some importance, but taken with all the other evidence whould not, in my opinion, change the verdict of the jury. The witness Green states that he was at the place shortly after the tragedy, and found Sectifs haumer on the tragedy, and found Scott's hammer on the tragedy, and found Scott's hammer on the bench, but it appears from his state-ments that it was not where Scott could have used it. Green took the hammer and conceafed it, and I think the cross-examina-tion showed he did this because he wanted to keep it. Besides he is impeached and under all the circumstances I think his testimony would do the defendant was best to the con-

I think his testimony would do the defendant more harm than good. It has been said that the case was a very close one. I confess that the evidence was such that it would have surprised me very much if the jury had found the defendant guilty of any less offense than man-slaughter. The evidence showed that this was a most brutal assault, and the story of the defendant seems to me to be inconsist-ent. The truth about it is that juries give too much weight to the testimony of de-fendants. It was not until a late day that a defendant was allowed to testify, because the motives he would have to testify falsely destroyed the weight of it. The truth about it is that with life and falsehood on one side and truth and death on the other, ninety-nine men out of a hundred take the side of falsehood and life. Men act and speak and testify from human motives. The protive street in act and speak and testify from human motives. The motive created by an oath is not sufficient to overcome the motive aroused by love of life and liberty. The testimony of the defendant is, in my judgment, entitled to but little weight unless corroborated. This was a most cruel homicide. Scott, it seems, was a hard working carpenter, and he was assaulted because he discharged the defendant.

If the law is to be enforced at all, such verdicts as this must stand. The criminal law is enforced that society may be protected, and although there is sympathy with a party convicted of a serious crime, the protection of society by the enforcement of the law cannot be dispensed with.
The motion for a new trial is overruied.

The Marine Tried to be Funny, But Lange Falled to Appreciate the Humor of the Situation. Two rattling sparring exhibitions were given here last evening. The first contest was between Lynott, the Fort Douglas pugilist, and Pauncefort, another middle weight. It was given at Ed Kelly's gymnasium, and owing to the limited room, was private, which fact gave rise to a rumou that a big fight was in progress. The men were very evenly matched and although the bout was merely a friendly set to, there was vim enough in the fighting to create considerable excitement. It was a very clever and scientific exhibition, and at the end of the six rounds, Lynott was declared the victor.

LANGE PUNISHES THE MARINE. The second will came off at the Franklin Avenue theatre and was between La Blanch, the Marine, and Charley Lange, two noted fighters. As soon as the men stepped into the ring the Marine commenced his usual antics, evidently expecting to have a lot of fun with his big antagonist. His first surprise came in the shape of a joit under the jaw, which laid him flat on the floor, and from that time on Lange had things his own way. The Marine tried his famous upper cut, his pivot blows and his swings, but they availed him nothing. Lange demonstrated his superiority in every respect, and when the six rounds ended the Marine was a badly demoralized man. Those who were not familiar with Lange's record were surprised at his ability, and he was cheered to the echo. The second will came off at the Franklin

The American Natural Gas Company Hold a Meeting.

J. E. Taylor Reports that He has Tied Up 29,600 Acres of Land with Leases.

The American Natural Gas company held an important meeting at its general offices at 23 West Second South street last even-

J. B. Taylor, who has been leasing land J. B. 133107, who has been leasing land for the company, reported that he had se-cured leases on 29,600 acres of land east of Farmington, and that the land held by franchises of pipeline right of way to Sain Lake city, Provo and Ogden would swell the amount to a short 120,000 acres Lake city, Provo and Ogden would swell this amount up to about 170,000 acres.

The company is incorporated with $5,000,000 capital stock, and it was voted to float a large block of this in the east.

J. B. Taylor, the manager of the company, will leave for the north in a few days to make explorations in that region. He Altogether we have twenty roller flour mills in successful operation in Utah, all built within about two years. Comment as to the quality of our machinery, class of work we do, or our method of doing business, would seem to be superfluous in this connection. We therefore refer to any or all of our customers, preferring to let them do the talking.

Our milling engineer, Mr. Joseph W. Wilson, will remain in Utah the present season, at the Valley house cottage, Salt Lake, as heretofore. Post office box 952. Mr. Wilson has had charge of all the above banks explorations in that region. He says that an assessment will shortly be made, bringing sufficient money to put down fifty wells, which will thoroughly test the entire territory leased by the company.
